

Long Island Newsday

Barkfest draws hundreds, costumed pets

October 27, 2013 10:01 AM

Several hundred people came to the Holiday Inn Express Stony Brook in South Setauket on Saturday for the 3rd annual Barkfest sponsored by Save-A-Pet Animal Rescue and Adoption Center. Costumed pets, dressed for Halloween, vied to win one of the 10 prizes for best costume.

Jessica Jampol, of Smithtown, adjusts her toy fox terrier Romeo's costume while attending the third annual Suffolk Barkfest, Long Island's largest pet costume contest and parade sponsored by Save-A-Pet Animal Rescue and Adoption Center and held behind the Holiday Inn Express in Setauket. (Oct. 26, 2013) Photo Credit: Steve Pfost